Fair Goldy shouted, "Look at that! The swan has on a funny hat. I s'pose he wants to keep his head warm while he flies along. It's really very cold up here. To Toyland, now, we must be near. The swan has made good time. I guess he must be pretty strong." Once more big snowflakes filled the air and Copy shouted, "This is rare. Imagine being on a sled slide, high above the ground." Another happy Tiny said, "We must be on a magic sled. It's simply resting on the air, yet I feel safe and sound." They traveled for an hour or so and then somebody shouted, "Oh, I think I see a cloud ahead, or maybe it is land." "We're heading that way very fast. Perhaps, though, we will go right past. I'll bet that I could see the place much better, if I'd stand." "For goodness sakes, lad, keep your seat. You think of things quite indiscreet," snapped Windy. "If the sled should tip, I know you'd take a flop." "Then you would be with us no more, 'cause on and on we're going to soar. If you do something foolish, don't expect that we will stop." The spot one of the Tinies spied was land, all right, and Copy cried, "Our swan is settling down, now. This is where our fine trip ends." As soon as they were on the ground, all of the Tinies looked around. Then Scouty loudly shouted, "I see seven little friends." "They're elves, and they are smiling. Gee, I guess we're welcome as can be. I have a hunch that fun's in store. I'm glad that we're on hand." The elves then raised signs in the air and Duncy cried, "Well, just look there! The letters on those seven little signs spell out 'TOYLAND!'" (Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.) (The Tinies get acquainted with the elves in the next story.)
